

Mark Justice
Advanced Practice Paramedic
EMS

Mark began his career with Wake County EMS in 1988. Prior to that time, Mark had worked several years at the former Garner Rescue Squad after moving to the area from Kinston. By then he was well-prepared to put on the Wake County EMS uniform of the time, which was the familiar green pants and white button-up shirt.

In working with experienced mentors, he worked hard as a young, new paramedic. Once his skills were well-developed, he was soon ready to take on more responsibility. In the coming years, he served as a field training officer and the team now known as the Tactical Medic, which serves in support of law enforcement during high risk situations.

Mark has also served many years in Wake County's unique Advanced Practice Paramedic program. This is a group of specially trained paramedics that serve to match patients with more appropriate resources when a hospital emergency department is not indicated.

The hallmark of Mark's career at Wake County EMS is steady, dependable service, regardless of the role. Mark is someone who serves everyone he comes across in a humble and gracious, yet immensely skilled way.

Please join me in congratulating Mark on his retirement.
