Interests & Experiences

Why are you interested in serving on a Board or Commission?

I am currently on the WakeMed Foundation Board serving on both the Development Committee and on The Grants and Skills Scholarship Committee. I have interviewed nurses and technicians and worked with the doctors that are on the Foundation Board and am continually moved by the desire and commitment of the WakeMed employees to make WakeMed nationally a top hospital. I would like the opportunity to serve on the WakeMed Hospital Board so that I can be a liason between the Foundation Board and the Hospital Board. Currently there is not someone serving in this capacity.

Mary Nash is the managing partner of McGuireWoods' Raleigh office. She works closely with local governments, nonprofits and others to finance capital improvements using tax advantage financing, primarily tax exempt bonds. Her work includes financings for educational institutions, including public and private K-12 schools, charter schools, and public and private colleges and universities.

She assists local governments and nonprofits in traditional tax exempt financings of capital projects, as well as more innovative financings that involve public-private partnerships, synthetic tax increment financing and new markets tax credits.

Mary Nash has been involved in nearly all of the affordable housing bond issues in the state over the past decade that involve tax exempt bonds and 4% tax credits, and she continues to work with local governments to find innovative ways to provide more affordable housing in North Carolina.

The best part of her practice is working with public and private borrowers to find ways to provide needed infrastructure and capital improvements using creative and cost-effective financing tools. "It is satisfying to know that when we finish a deal, something will be built that the community needs," she said.

- Acted as bond counsel and bank counsel for numerous privately placed bank loans to cities, counties, school districts and other public entities.
- Acted as borrower's counsel, lender's counsel and underwriter's counsel in new markets tax credit transactions to finance, among others, several public schools, a city arts center and theater, a manufacturing facility, a hospital addition, a biotech center, a YMCA facility, a downtown community facility and a charter school.
- Acted as bond counsel for numerous industrial development bonds (formally known as qualified small issue bonds) and exempt facility bonds (including solid waste disposal bonds) in North Carolina.
